tra of Boston, one of the greatest women's musical organizations in the world.

The wedding occurred on Tuesday evening in Pittsburg and was the culmination of a romance that has been of about three years' duration.

According to despatches from Pittsburg, the couple met in that city when Miss Swan was playing at the Grand opera house. At that time Mr. Corbett was an engineer employed by the government on an inland waterways project. It is said that Miss Swan objected to his occupation and he immediately entered the office of W. R. & J. R. Kuhn, bankers and brokers.

In two or three years he is said to have amassed a large fortune through investments in coal lands. The friends of Mr. Corbett were surprised to learn of the marriage, as they had not been acquainted with his intentions. After their honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs.
Corbett will live in the Fort Pitt hotel, one of the fashionable places of Pittsburg.

Miss Swan studied under Claude Sperry and has played frequently with the American band at Roger Williams' park in Providence. Several years ago Miss Swan became identified with the Fidelity orchestra. She has toured this country and Europe as the trombone soloist of the organization and has been everywhere accorded the honor of being acclaimed the greatest woman player on this instrument yet known.

Miss Swan is a beautiful girl, 26 years of age. She was born in Foster, R. I., just a few miles east of Danielson. She has frequently visited in town where she has relatives and friends.

BIGAMIST HAUNTED.

Theodore Lavelle Gives Himself up and Confesses Second Marriage.

Capt. John Murray has a telegram from James McCaffrey, inspector of detectives for New York, asking for information about Rose Dubuque, who married Theodore Lavelle in this city in 1904, the husband now being held in New York as a self-confessed bigamist.

The New York Evening World of Wednesday had the following to say about the case:

The lure of a "big job" brought Theodore Lavelle, a boss carpenter, to New York from his home in a Connecticut village; the lure of New York kept him here until he had forgotten his wife and daughter. Then he took another wife. Now he is locked up on a charge of bigamy that he made against himself, driven to confession he said by the visions he has had of his wife and child he left seven years ago.

The second wife, who lived with Lavelle at No. 426 East Eighty-first street, has collapsed. She knew nothing of the other woman until a policeman went to her home and told her that her husband had surrendered himself. She was Mrs. Lucy Wilkins until a justice of the peace joined her to Lavelle in 1904, she claimed. A few weeks later Lavelle was married to her a second time by a priest to satisfy the religious feelings of her family. That was before the carpenter began to have visions.

By his own story he married Rose Dubuque in 1894, in Putnam, Conn.
Eight years later he came here to take a job that meant big wages, intending to send for his wife and daughter as soon as he was sure he could hold his own in the competition of the city. He held his own and prospered, but forgot to send for the family.

"I love my second wife," said Lavelle, in the Jefferson market court yesterday, "but lately I have thought more and more of the woman I left, and I can't stand the visions it brings up. I want to take my medicine for the crime I have committed."

After hearing that confession Maxistrate Kernochan held the man for examination tomorrow. Meantime the police will try to find the Connecticut wife.

Mrs. Francis Montpelier of Elm street, this city, is a sister of La-velle's wife. Mrs. Montpelier told Captain Murray that she did not know Mrs. Lavelle's street address, but said she was in New York at present.

The Lavelles are remembered by scores of Putnam people. After they were married they lived for a time in the Pelouin building, on Pomfret street and were apparently happy.
Lavelle is said to have been very fond of his Putnam wife and the New York story about his visions and remorse may be very near the truth.

Have Purchased Damaged Building.

dle manufacturers who recently came to Putnam and took quarters in the old Fisher shoe shop, have purchased the building of T. P. Botham and will cent fire in the structure.

New Office Building Planned.

Foundations for an office building for the firm of Gilpatrick & Whipple have been put in on the site where they will conduct a coal, wood and ice business. The grading for the site track has been about completed, but the ties and rails have not been put down.
